

Role of the International Alumni Board

London Business School's International Alumni Board seeks to develop, enhance and support a network of mutually beneficial and enduring relationships between alumni, students, faculty and the School.

As representatives of London Business School's alumni, the International Alumni Board commits to:

- Serve alumni as passionate advocates of alumni interests within the School and its leadership;
- Act as a bridge between alumni and the School, responding to evolving needs of both, while helping the School to build upon its competitive position;
- Solicit and proactively represent views of alumni on issues of interest to them;
- Advise and support the School in developing and enhancing programmes, services and opportunities for alumni;
- Set measurable targets for success and review progress against defined strategy and objectives;
- Assist the School in generating financial and in-kind support through alumni and their networks;
- Foster an alumni network that creates a culture of lifelong support and belonging;
- Serve as role models in their active involvement with London Business School and the alumni network;
- Achieving 100% Board participation in annual giving to the school.
