AQR Asset Management Institute Young Researcher Awards 2020

We are pleased to announce the winners of the AQR Asset Management Institute Young Researcher Awards 2020. These annual awards recognise talented new academics producing innovative and impactful research, which is relevant for the field of asset management, broadly defined. The award is open to junior faculty members with up to five years’ work experience at any recognised higher education institution worldwide. The winners receive an equal share of £20,000.

For their outstanding contributions to academic research, we recognise Sabrina T. Howell, Assistant Professor of Finance, New York University Leonard N. Stern School of Business, and Jesse Schreger, Assistant Professor of Business, Columbia Business School as the top Young Researchers for 2020. Howell is noted for her work on entrepreneurship and Schreger is noted for his contributions to international macroeconomics.

Sabrina T. Howell
Assistant Professor of Finance, New York University Leonard N. Stern School of Business, and Faculty Research Fellow, National Bureau of Economic Research. Professor Howell’s research focuses on entrepreneurial finance, innovation, fintech, energy, and China. Howell received her PhD in Political Economy and Government from Harvard University and her BA in Economics and East Asian Studies from Yale University.

Jesse Schreger
Assistant Professor of Business, Columbia Business School, and Faculty Research Fellow, National Bureau of Economic Research. Professor Schreger’s research is primarily focused on international finance and macroeconomics, particularly sovereign debt and exchange rates. Schreger received his PhD in Political Economy and Government from Harvard University and his BA in Economics and International Relations from the University of Pennsylvania.

The AQR Asset Management Institute was launched in January 2015 with a mission to become the world leader for asset management related research, study and recruitment. It also aims to be a centre for thought leadership. The Institute harnesses the School’s dynamic combination of academic excellence, global perspective and London experience, with London being a major hub for the asset management industry.

The Institute promotes excellence in asset management via three main channels:

- Research and best practices for the global investment community
The Institute conducts and supports a wide range of research in the field of asset management at London Business School.

- The exchange of ideas
  The Institute offers a preeminent forum for the sharing of ideas and the debate of critical investment issues, convening leading academics, practitioners, policymakers and regulators from around the globe.

- Future leaders and scholars in asset management
  The Institute recognises academic and research excellence by supporting London Business School students and rising scholars around the world with a series of awards

London Business School is proud to partner in this endeavor with AQR Capital Management.
